SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1855.

Crime at the Sandwich Islands. "By statistical tables it appears that the decrease of population in the Sandwich Islands in the year 1854, was six thousand five hundred and eighteen. One out of every twenty-three of the inhabitants had been convicted of crime within the year."

The above extract we find in an American paper and rafers, not to the year 1854, but to 1853, the report of which was made to the legislature in April, 1854.

So far as numbers are concerned, the statement is correct, as derived from the Reports of His Majesty's Ministers to the legislature; but there are some considerations worthy of notice, in regard to what the crimes were, and who committed them.

The number of criminal convictions during the year 1853, were 3,173. The number of inhabitants were, natives, 71,019; foreigners, 2,118,-total, 73,137. Proportions of convictions, one in twenty-three. More than half of these convictions were for misdemeanors rather than for crimes properly denominated felonies. For instance, drunkenness 1,059; furious riding, 319; common nuisance, 47; minor offenses, 165; riotous conduct, 100; distarbing the quiet of the night, 20; amounting to 1,719 of the 3,173 cases of conviction reported. There are no cases of murder, arson or forgery, and but few of what are usually denominated henious offen-

The reports of the several district attorneys do not discriminate in all cases between the natives and foreigners, and but two of them incidentally mention the number of foreigners convicted for a few of the crimes specified. But from the two districts embracing Lahaina and Honolulu, we find them reporting 1,028 of the 3,173 crimes for which convictions were made, to have been committed by foreigners. Two other districts make no report on the subject; but we presume it would not be unfair to assume that 1,200 of the convictions were of foreigners, and these not of the residents but almost entirely of transient visitors, connected with the ships that visit our ports. This would leave but 1,873 convictions of natives, or one in 39 insteal of one in 23, and, as we have before remarked, almost entirely for offenses that should rather be denominated misdemeanors rather than crimes.

We have no desire to apologise for crime, nor to shield its perpetrators from the just odium which necessarily attaches to its commission; but we are of opinion that the assertion in the extract at the head of these remarks that "one out of every 23 of the inhabitants had been convicted of crime within the year," is altogether too sweeping, and conveys an impression of the state of morals at the islands which facts do not justify. Indeed, from the im perfect reports on this head made by the district attorneys, we have clearly reduced the proportion to one in thirty-nine of the native population, and at the same time have shown that crimes properly denominated folonies, are almost unknown at these islands.

The most numerous offenses against the penal laws of the kingdom are adultery and fornication, 1853, we publish below the table reported by the 34, Chief Justice to the legislature, as follows :-

Of the above, but 224 are felonies by our laws, and of these, the great majority of the larceny cases were petty thefts of a less value than 100 dollars, and many of less than five dollars. The language of our Penal Code is, "The terms felony and crime, are, within the meaning of the provisions of this code, synonymous, and mean such offenses as are punishable with death, or imprisonment for a longer period than two years or by the forleiture of any civil or political right, and also larceny. Several small vessels are now coasting 65 among the islands whose licenses have expired, and not been renewed. The object of the Collector's notice is, as we understand it, to give notice to their owners of the fact, and if not speedily renewed, it is his intention to proceed against them according to the law. The omission of their names in the list, will indicate to their owners that their licenses have expired, and they will act according-

Gortschakoff replied that his instructions did not go so far; his orders were only to negotiate respecting the four points, but he would send off a courier, and hoped to receive further instructions within three days. Our informant says, that the terms proposed to Gortschakoff were neither hard nor humiliating. There was no mention of the razing of Sebastopol, nor of a reduction of the Russian fleet in the Black Sea

Gortschakoff requested 14 days to obtain instructions from St. Petersburg, which were granted. Consequently it will be a fortnight ere anything be decided. Hostilities will continue in the meantime. France —The Emperor opened the legislative session of 1855 in person. The Emperor, in his speech, alludes to the treaty with Austria as defensive for the present. He thanks the British Parliament for its cordial and warm demonstrations, and the English army for its valuable co-operation. The French land army is stated at 581,000, and 132,000 horses, the marine 62,000 sailors on shipboard. He asks for an additional levy of 120,-000 men, and states that the revenues of the country remain undiminished. The speech is highly praised, but it has caused a slight depression of the funds, both French and English.

On the 27th, the Minister of Finance was authorized to negotiate a loan of 500,000,000 francs. THE CRIMEA .- Affairs before Sebistopol were unchanged up to the 20th of December. The Russians claim to have done considerable damage to the approaches of the allies. Nevertheless, the third French parallel was completely mounted with cannon.

The reinforcements for the allies up to the 18th of December, had reached 18,000. An official despatch from Balaklava, published in the Moniteur, says the situation of the allies is excellent. Gen. Liprandi, with 40,000 men, was manœuvering
